Fairwinds is committed to making a difference by providing wellness focused alternative products. PTSD affects a significant percentage of men and women in the US and world-wide and is typically triggered by a traumatic event and is not specific to those who have served in the military. See below for a couple links to learn more about PTSD, including a broad spectrum of information offered by the U.S. Dept. of Veterans Affairs.²

There have been many studies conducted that support the effectiveness of cannabis in the support of PTSD. This is further reinforced under section 16 of the Cannabis Patient Protection Act, where PTSD is identified as one of several conditions that, in accordance with medical evidence, medical cannabis may provide benefits.³

Blending cannabis oil with powerful herbs unlocks tremendous capability well beyond what smoking cannabis provides and with discretion. The cannabis oils are chosen based on their cannabinoid and terpene profiles, then blended to provide a unique effect. This product is designed to provide support without psychoactive side effects thanks to CBD and the non-psychoactive THCA cannabinoid vs. THC. Although effects vary for individuals and typical cannabis disclaimers of psychoactive effects apply.
